The Eye Song

(tunes of (“I’ve Been Working on the Railroad,” “Dinah Don’t You Know”))

I’ve been learning ‘bout my eyeball, in my science class.
It’s a gift from God for me, and helps me learn ‘bout him.

The outer layer’s called the cornea, it keeps out the dust.
The iris is the colored part that, lets the light come in.

As the light goes through the pupil, it passes through a lens.
The lens bends the light to focus, on the back wall retina.

The image travels up the optic nerve, to the brain it goes.
Rods help me see in dim light, and cones in all colors.

It’s gift from God, it’s a gift from God, it’s a gift from God for me . . .
Cornea, iris, lens and retina, they’re a gift from God for me!
